

Providing loads of storage space, a double-bowl vanity is a more practical choice than a pair of pedestal sinks.

Easy transition

From bedroom to bathroom, this functional space is more hard-working than it seems

With all the glitz and glamour of a bathroom in a luxurious five-star hotel, this breathtaking space from Bubbles Bathrooms was designed to impress.

From the huge double shower to the enormous spa bath complete with headrests set in 100mm-entred stone, designer Paul Hutchison has gone all-out to provide the owners with an indulgent space where they can escape from everyday life.

When designing the bathroom, Paul wanted to achieve a space to suit the grandeur of the rest of the home. It was also a requirement that the bathroom be given a good flow of natural light to highlight the gleaming porcelain-tiled floor and sparkling frameless shower.

Everything about this space is super-sized. The clients requested two walk-in robes for the separate storage of bathroom necessities and this "his-and-her" approach continued to the modern double vanity that offers plenty of space for the clients to shave and put on make-up simultaneously.

Every detail of the layout has been carefully considered, with the spa positioned for easy viewing of the television and the toilet area, which encompasses a toilet and bidet, hidden out of sight behind a unique feature wall.

The clever use of colour and texture has resulted in a striking space with all the important little luxuries — and then some. We're not the only ones to recognise this bathroom's distinct appeal — the design picked up the Victorian Kitchen and Bathroom Award for the Best Renovated Bathroom over $30,000 at the 2007 HIA awards and won Paul Hutchison Victorian & Australian Bathroom Designer of the Year. #YB
